The Battle.

Somehow the battles fought in Italy, although ugly enough affairs, do not appear to have been as hard fought as many in our own history or in the history of the wars of the first Napoleon. The masses of men in Lombardy far exceed anything in modern warfare, and the means of offence, the arms and equipments for mutual destruction, are of a much improved stamp, yet the results are neither so deadly nor decisive as had been anticipated. The battle of Magenta rather came on than was deliberately planned by either party, and in its killed and wounded in proportion to the whole number engaged, was not at all to be compared with our own battles in Mexico.

The fuller details brought by the Hungarian, although nearly all through French channels, do not by any means prove the victory of the French to have been a decisive one. There is no rout of the Austrians, and they are ples, or to whatever other cause it is to be attributed is road. It would seem that the boy had gotten up on preparing for another battle. They crossed over to attack the French, showing that they have resumed the offensive, and feel that they have reserves to fall back

Much will depend upon the interview between the Emperor Austria and the Regent of Prussia. If tha interview results in a military alliance, then the war must become general.

We take it that the battle of the 24th ult., was rath er an affair of positions than a regular engagement .-The loss of guns and prisoners by the Austrians is the most humilitating circumstance.

Where Salferino is we can only infer from the state ment that the Austrians crossed the Mincio to attack the allies. Salferino is, we suppose a village near that to accompany House Bill No. 678. river. It is not in map or Gazetteer.

At first we hardly thought that Coleman would be reason—not simply affirm. elected, although we had no doubt that his party was in the majority in the eighth district, as shown by the vote for Governor and President, but especially for Governor. as that is the more recent. There were "side issues," however, that we knew were exerting an unfortunate influence upon the Democratic party in that district,issues that could not come before a Congressman for official action or vote-issues arising out of the location of projected public works and other matters of a local character with which Congress could not have anything to do. Against such issues or their influence we warned our Democratic friends of the mountains at the first .-We have reason to hope that they themselves have thought about the matter, and have seen the mistaken character of the course they were pursuing.

By a gentleman very recently from the 5th district, we learn that S. E. Williams, Esq., is strongly encouraged to believe that he will be elected to Congress in place of Hon. John A. Gilmer, and such appears to be the belief of others. Certainly the appearances are that Mr. Williams will get a much better vote than he did two years since. He is now much more cordially Prussia offers to mediate on the basis of a modification supported by the Democratic party, and will receive some votes from those, until recently, acting with the Louis Napoleon is pledged to the extinction of such opposition. lines are very strictly drawn, and great changes are not to be expected. The election two years ago was carried for Dr. Shaw by a very small majority, something under fifty. There is, therefore, every incentive for exertion on both sides, and there is, we fear, a great deal too much | French auspices to stir up a Hungarian revolution .bitterness of feeling elicited. The very fact that the Against this Prussia protests, and Russia, however litsame gentleman opposes Dr. Shaw now as opposed him two years since, gives a sort of continuity and intensity kindled must be in dangerous proximity to her Polish to the struggle which it might not otherwise possess.

When two years ago Dr. Shaw and Mr. Smith ran, they bore themselves towards each other as gentleman should, and we heard of nothing tending to a disturbance of their friendly and peaceful relations. In the face he has raised, and he will then soon find the banded of this Mr. Rayner, who figured in the opposition Convention by which Mr. Smith was brought out, made a speech in which he stated his belief, that advantage might be taken of Mr. Smith's known opposition to duelling, in order to run over him or attempt to do so, and there Mr. Rayner proceeded to refer to portions of the Democrats as "sons of b-s"-"d-mn sons of b-s." the Edenton Express, one of his organs, reported him as having said. Rayner in a letter to the Express admit ted all but the "d-mn." He also counselled a resort to cudgel law. In the present canvass wherever Shaw has spoken he has been exceedingly severe upon Ray ner, and very recently, when speaking at Murfreesboro'. the county seat of Hertford, near Mr. Rayner's residence he repeated all he had said elsewhere extenuating, nothing. On the day of the discussion there Mr. Rayner did not make his appearance in town, staying out at his plantation all day.

There can be little doubt but that the peculiar character of a part of the opposition made to Dr. Shaw materially helped in securing his election two years ago and the same will be the case now. No doubt Mr. Smith feels the weight which such support imposes upon him-the foolishly spiteful diatribes of the Washington

Borrowing Trouble.

Really the Democratic party of North Carolina particular, and of the U. States generally, must be suffering with an excess of prosperity, since it appears so anxious to borrow or make trouble for itself. It must have too few enemies to fight since it seems determined to have quarrels between its own members. It has not a sufficient number of issues actually forced upon it by party of the other part" but it is compelled to swell the list by making "feigned issues" to divide and distract more than we can say—the fact, unfortunately, is so .-The difficulty might be greatly lessened, if not wholly had to each others opinions by conductors of the press and other public members of the Democratic party.-The disposition to dictate—the tendency to make issues mark of good taste or sound judgment.

We have been led into this train of reflection mainly by happening to pick up a pamphlet which happened to thrown off the track, nor was any other damage done. lie upon our table, said pamphlet being the report from the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, submitted by Mr. Branch on the 24th January, 1859.
